"Chemical Safety Issues in the Film Industry." Chemists Are Needed EVERYWHERE: Especially in the Entertainment Industry.
 People in theater, film and television work with chemicals every day. As a child, Monona worked in variety entertainment (Vaudeville), and saw chemicals used in magic acts that caused things to flash into flame, disappear or change color. Today she deals with chemicals ranging from those used to paint faces (makeup) or to paint scenery, to explosive chemicals used to blow up cars. The program will start with a short video showing how pyrotechnic chemicals are used to simulate bullets hitting walls or people and then she'll discuss a host of other chemical issues in the entertainment industry.
